MULBERRY MURALS

City, artists celebrate cultural transformation of parking lot

BY BOB DEMAREE

After four years in the making, the Mulberry Murals are now a reality, and Saturday was a time to celebrate the meaning and beauty of their completion.

"This is a remarkable achievement during a remarkable time," said Randy Lakeman, president of the Madison Area Arts Alliance, noting that not even a pandemic could prevent the project from reaching fruition with a message of "Kindness" that's particularly meaningful during this challenging era. The Mulberry Murals, located on the walls around the parking lot in the northeast corner of Mulberry and Second streets, carry a message of kindness and acceptance while sharing scenes and stories related to Madison and Jefferson County on five murals that include work from more than 20 local artists.

Lakeman noted the project was funded by 160 donors along with many in-kind donations of paints, materials and more. In particular, Lakeman expressed appreciation to Lisa Lumpford, owner of the former Hentz Bakery building at 316 Mulberry Street, and Steve Lyons, owner of the Jefferson County Amusement building at 213 East Second Street, for allowing the Madison Area Arts Alliance to use the spaces on the sides of their buildings for the murals.

"I love this town so much," said Paige Sharp, deputy director of programs of the Indiana Arts Commission. "When I'm in Madison, I feel I'm in a fun bubble," she added citing not only the Madison Area Arts Alliance, but also the Madison Music Movement and the Historic District. She loves the theme

Carroll, Trimble still rank high as COVID-19 case numbers continue decline

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Although new COVID-19 cases in Kentucky are trending downward, Trimble and Carroll counties continue to rank high for incidence rates, keeping both in the "Red" metric for high community spread.

On Friday, Trimble's incidence rate was 47.2% while Carroll's was at 44.3%, making Trimble 10th highest and Carroll 11th among Kentucky's 120 counties.

On Friday, Kentucky reported 1,626 new cases of COVID-19, bringing the state's overall total to 734,137. There were 29 new deaths, increasing the state's overall total to 9,559.

Late last week, Kentucky Gov. Andy Beshear reported a double-digit decline in hospitalizations from the virus in the previous seven days. He said virus-related admissions to intensive care units and ventilator use had also dropped steadily. But Beshear said more progress needed to be made in reducing numbers in the state.

"So let's not cheer and celebrate while we're still at where we are," Beshear told the Associated Press. "Let's do what it takes to continue to push this decline."

The governor used statistics on ventilator use to reinforce his point.

"We should be grateful that we now have fewer people on a ventilator than at the height of our

City breaks ground on $2.6M Crystal Beach overhaul

BY BOB DEMAREE

Crystal Beach has been a recreational asset in Madison since the 1930s when during the Great Depression, the Work Progress Administration (WPA) constructed a massive pool and bath house that Madison Mayor Bob Courtney said "has become a critical part of our historic district."

On Monday at noon, the city took a big step toward making sure the iconic water park continues to serve city residents and visitors by holding a groundbreaking ceremony for a $2.6 million project rehabilitation project that Courtney said will ensure Crystal Beach is "saved for the next generation."

The rehabilitation will make significant improvements to the Crystal Beach pool house focused on providing improved ADA (American Disabilities Act) access within the site while extending the life of the facility.

Among the improvements will be a concession area with new electrical service, restored perimeter fencing and walls, a renovated and accessible pool deck, a new pool liner and permanent installation of the historic planter urns.

Additionally, bath, shower and locker rooms will be repaired and renovated for ADA accessibility and in the future patrons will enter and pay in

October is domestic violence awareness month

Domestic violence damages victims physically and emotionally and its effects are long lasting. October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month, a time for greater understanding of this issue and to remember victims of abuse.

DAVID SUTTER

In the more than 30 years since this DVAM was launched in 1987, awareness and understanding of domestic violence has increased. Still more needs to be done to end this damaging cycle.

The statistics involving domestic violence are sobering. In Indiana, 40.4% of women and 26.8% of men experience intimate partner physical violence, partner sexual violence and/or partner stalking in their lifetime.

"Domestic violence is a big problem in our community, state and nation," said Prosecutor Sutter. "Domestic violence disrupts lives and can have a significant negative impact on mental stability."

Domestic violence is most commonly associated with physical violence. However, there are many other types of abuse that are considered domestic violence. These include:

- Sexual violence
- Emotional violence
- Psychological violence
- Spiritual violence
- Cultural violence
- Verbal abuse
- Financial abuse.

"It's important to recognize that domestic violence leaves marks; those inflicted by physical violence leave visible injuries but all types of domestic abuse leave scars, even if they aren't visible," said Sutter.

The first step in addressing domestic violence is knowing the signs. According to domesticshelters.org, here are common red flags:

- Being jealous of your friends or time spent away
- Discouraging you from spending time away from your partner
- Embarrassing or shaming you
- Controlling financial decisions
- Making you feel guilty for all the relationship problems
- Preventing you from working
- Intentionally damaging your property
- Threatening violence against you, your pets or someone you love to gain compliance
- Pressuring you to have sex when you don't want to
- Intimidating you physically, especially with weapons

Here are steps you can take to help stop domestic violence in your community:

- Know the signs. Domestic violence can happen to anyone and affects all ages, races and income/education levels
- Don't ignore domestic violence out of a desire to not get involved
- Lend an ear; listen without judgment
- Be available and ready to help
- Know the number to a nearby shelter
- Check in regularly if a loved one or friend is experiencing domestic violence
- Be a resource; do the legwork regarding an escape plan and how to set up necessities for someone considering leaving a relationship
- Write it down; document incidents in detail

"Domestic violence takes many forms, and we can only address this problem through ongoing education and a willingness to help," said Sutter. "Nobody should live in fear."

Free, confidential help is available 24/7 from the National Domestic Violence Hotline by calling 1-800-799-SAFE (7233) or by texting "START" to 88788. You may also reach out to Safe Passage Inc. They provide a 24/7 Toll-Free Helpline 1-877-733-1990 to provide help, healing, and hope for our community.

Where are the workers? Cutoff of jobless aid spurs no influx

BY CHRISTOPHER RUGABER, CASEY SMITH AND LARRY FENN
ASSOCIATED PRESS/ REPORT FOR AMERICA

INDIANAPOLIS — Earlier this year, an insistent cry arose from business leaders and Republican governors: Cut off a $300-a-week federal supplement for unemployed Americans. Many people, they argued, would then come off the sidelines and take the millions of jobs that employers were desperate to fill.

Yet three months after half the states began ending that federal payment, there's been no significant influx of job seekers.

In states that cut off the $300 check, the workforce — the number of people who either have a job or are looking for one — has risen no more than it has in the states that maintained the payment. That federal aid, along with two jobless aid programs that served gig workers and the long-term unemployed, ended nationally Sept. 6. Yet America's overall workforce actually shrank that month.

"Policymakers were pinning too many hopes on ending unemployment insurance as a labor market boost," said Fiona Greig, managing director of the JPMorgan Chase Institute, who has studied the issue.

Labor shortages have persisted longer than many economists expected, deepening a mystery at the heart of the job market. Companies are eager to add workers and have posted a near-record number of available jobs. Yet job growth slowed in August and September.

An Associated Press analysis of state data found that workforces in the 25 states that maintained the $300 payment actually grew slightly more from May through September, according to data released Friday, than in the 25 states that cut off the payment early, most of them in June. The $300-a-week federal check, on top of state jobless aid, meant that many of the unemployed received more in benefits than they earned at their old jobs.

Economists cite a range of factors that are likely keeping former recipients of federal jobless aid from returning to the workforce. Many Americans in public-facing jobs still fear contracting COVID-19. Some families lack child care.

Other people, like Rachel Montgomery of Anderson, Indiana, have grown to cherish more time with their families and feel they can get by financially, at least for now. Montgomery, a 37-year-old mother, said she has become much "pickier" about where she's willing to work after having lost a catering job last year. Losing the $300-a-week federal payment hasn't changed her mind. She'll receive her regular state jobless aid for a few more weeks.

"Once you've stayed home with your kids and family like this, who wants to physically have to go back to work?" she said. "I'm not going to sacrifice pay or flexibility working remotely when I know I'm qualified to do certain things. But what that also means is that it's taking longer to find those kinds of jobs."

Some former recipients, especially older, affluent ones, have decided to retire earlier than they had planned. And after having received three stimulus checks in 18 months, plus federal jobless aid in some cases, most households have larger cash cushions than they did before the pandemic. So some people are taking time to consider their options.

Graham Berryman, a 44-year-old resident of Springfield, Missouri, has been living off savings since Missouri cut off the $300-a-week federal jobless payment in June. He has had temporary work reviewing documents for law firms in the past. But he hasn't found anything permanent since August 2020.

"I am unemployed," Berryman said. "That does not mean I'm lazy. Just because someone cannot find suitable work in their profession doesn't mean they're trash to be thrown away."

Likewise, some couples have decided that they can get by with only one income, rather than two, at least temporarily.

Sarah Hamby of Kokomo, Indiana, lost her $300-a-week federal payment this summer after her state ended it early. Hamby's husband, who is 65, kept his job at a printing press throughout the pandemic. But he may decide to join the ranks of people retiring earlier than they'd planned.

And Hamby, 51, may do so herself if she doesn't find work soon. The jobs she had for decades at auto factories have largely disappeared.

"I don't want to go work at a computer, in an office, like what a lot of us are being pushed to do," she said. "So now I'm stuck between doing some line of work that pays too little for what it's worth — or is too physically demanding — or I just don't work."

Let Us Pause To Honor The Memory Of

Ms. Dana R. Webster McIntyre

Ms. Dana R. Webster McIntyre, age 55, of Owenton, Kentucky, entered this life March 21, 1966 in Owenton, Kentucky to bless the home of Allen Clarence Webster and Joyce Ann Riley Webster. She was raised in Warsaw, Kentucky where she would live all of her life until she had recently moved to Owenton, Kentucky. She was a 1984 graduate of the Gallatin County High School and soon after married Mike McIntyre in 1989. This union was blessed to raise two sons, Allen Michael McIntyre and James Riley McIntyre. Her working career was spent serving as a waitress at the Glencoe Truck Stop where she blessed many with kind service and a warm smile. However, the joy of her life was to be a mother to her boys and later a Mamaw to her grandchildren. She was a woman of faith who attended the Paint Lick Baptist Church in Warsaw, Kentucky. She will be missed for her calming, "laid back" presence that encouraged her friends and family to take one step at a time and to avoid stressing about things that they could not change. Dana passed away on Wednesday, October 20, 2021, at 9:31 p.m. at Saint Elizabeth Hospital in Fort Thomas, Kentucky.

Let Us Pause To Honor The Memory Of

Mrs. Judy Ann Cardinal Basham

Mrs. Judy Ann Cardinal Basham, age 73, of Madison, Indiana entered this life on April 17, 1948 in Madison, Indiana. She was the youngest daughter of the late Lawrence "Bud" and Mabel Marie Martin Cardinal. She was raised in Dupont, Indiana and was in the first graduating class of the Madison Consolidated High School in 1966, but was always a Dupont Hornet in her heart. She was raised in the Dupont United Methodist Church and was later baptized at the North Madison Christian Church where she attended. Judy was united in marriage to John Wayne Basham on August 23, 1965 in Jefferson County by Judge Schnaitter. This happy union of 56 years was blessed with a daughter Teresa Ann and a son, Brian Wayne. She grew up in the Dupont community and always had a fondness for Dupont. Judy enjoyed being a domestic engineer and caregiver to Allison Armstrong. She was involved in school activities at Ryker's Ridge and Dupont Elementary schools. From 2000, Judy served as the office manager for the Jefferson County Youth Shelter for 17 years. Judy enjoyed being with her family, tending to her lawn, and riding with her husband John on their motorcycle. She also liked working on word searches and puzzles, going to flea markets, and tractor shows. Judy loved watching her hummingbirds and cardinals. She was a devoted fan of Elvis and collected his memorabilia, snowmen, and of course cardinals. Judy fought a very unexpected battle with lung cancer. A tragic time in her life where she gained strength from her family. She asked that special thanks be given to her niece, Debbie Bear Judge for her love and concern. Judy left this earthly home for her next adventure in her heavenly home on Friday, October 22, 2021 at 12:52 p.m. with her loving family at her side at her home on Ryker's Ridge.

Overwhelmed by ice cream

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I read your column every day, and I read with great interest the letter from the wife whose husband had an affair 20 years earlier. She was bitter that none of her friends told her about it.

I found myself in a similar situation, only I was the friend, and I DID tell her that her husband was cheating on her. This was 35 years ago.

Remember the old expression about killing the messenger? That's what happened to me. I had struggled with what to do with this information for several days. I knew she'd be devastated, but I believed she deserved the truth. She was my best friend, and I felt I'd be lying to her face every time I saw her if I didn't tell her.

I practiced for days trying to come up with the most supportive way of talking to her. I went and saw her, and we talked for about an hour, and it was very, very difficult. I left knowing that she had a lot to process and sort out, and I gave her some space. After a few days, I called but could not reach her. I left messages, but I never heard back from her.

Fifteen years later, I got a rather incoherent and angry letter from her, blaming me — for what, specifically, wasn't clear.

The wife who wrote to you complaining that no one told her might have reacted differently 20 years ago if someone had let her know. — Killed Messenger in Pennsylvania

Dear Killed Messenger: Thank you for your letter. I suppose it was easier to get mad at you than her husband who had betrayed her.

Dear Annie: Why do Americans have so many ice cream products?

This week, I went to the supermarket, and there were 10 new ice creams to choose from, and I was just about to finish off trying them all from the prior week. I'm not fat — yet.

Yes, even with the problems of supply, they somehow still manage to pack the refrigerators with new choices. I find myself spending at least five to 10 minutes trying to choose an ice cream that is healthy, economical and tastes good.

In my country, we have fewer ice cream choices, but they all taste good. Should I check myself to see if I have obsessive-compulsive disorder, or should I be concerned that we indeed have too many choices in America?

— Too Many Choices

Dear Choices: You bring up a good point that too many choices can actually be detrimental to your well-being. Psychology professor Barry Schwartz argues that having an infinite number of choices can be exhausting. We can set unrealistic expectations and then think we might have made the wrong choice.

Next time you go to the supermarket, make up your mind on the flavor you want before you enter, and don't let all the choices seduce you into swaying.

Was it a mistake to call the cops on my son?

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I am a 45-year-old single man. I have three children: two sons from my marriage, both in their 20s, and my daughter, who is 14, from an ex-girlfriend. When my oldest son was thrown out of his mother's home, I had him move in right away.

He got a good job, and I added him to my insurance and charged him $100 a week for rent. That was really to help out with the insurance and to teach him responsibility.

Well, after a few years, there was a nightmare one night. My son's friends were over, and unfortunately, he had too much to drink and smoke. He blacked out and started attacking his friend's younger brother. He started attacking me as well. After an hour of trying to calm things down, I had to call the police to have him removed for the safety of everyone in the house. Well, my son remembers that he spent the night in jail. When he got out, he came to my place and grabbed his belongings, and his mother picked him up.

This was a year ago, and since that time, neither he nor my other son will visit or even talk to me. The worst part is that they are ignoring their sister, who lives only two miles away from them. This really hurts me, and I have reached out, trying to mend fences and come to an understanding. Neither of them will respond.

When my daughter texts them, they mostly ignore her, or when they do answer, they give her a hard time. She is as ashamed of them as I am. I have even touched base and told them via text that they only have one sister and they need to be there for her, as they are her older brothers. Be mad at me, but please, be there for her.

What else can I do? My daughter visits on a regular basis, and I love our time together. I want the boys to join us, but they won't answer any invitations. They haven't even met the dog I adopted. Do you have any advice? I don't want to give up, as they are my children. — Lost Dad in Massachusetts

Dear Lost Dad: Your sons are not taking any responsibility for their actions. Instead of thanking you for calling the police, and hopefully helping them clean up their act, they are blaming you for the night spent in jail. It was your son who committed the assault, not you. The anger they feel might be old anger they felt toward you for the divorce or other things when they were young.

But now that they are adults, they must take responsibility for their actions. They are acting very entitled. As for your daughter, just continue to love and appreciate her. Hopefully, your son will get into treatment for his drinking, and once he is sober, he will realize that what you did was for his own good.

Continue to tell both sons how much you love them, even if they push you away.

the center lobby and then proceed through the locker room to access the pool areas with the locker rooms re-designed so that the floor is level with the pool deck.

An elevator will be installed for ADA access to the second floor, along with renovated second floor restrooms for ADA access. A warming kitchen will be added to the second floor to provide event facilities and a new HVAC system will be installed for the entire building. The historic pool house will receive tuckpointing, renovated windows, new doors, and new staircases and decking made from modern materials.

Nicole Schell, the city's director of planning, noted the kitchen area has not been used for 10 years, and with the improvements Courtney noted there will be a space in the building that is usable for the benefit of the community.

The project, funded in part by Community Development Block Grants administered by the Indiana Office of Community of Rural Affairs and a matching contribution from the City of Madison Redevelopment Commission, became one the top priorities after Madison received designation as a Stellar Community.

Courtney spoke about the historical significance of Crystal Beach to the city, calling it "iconic." The Mayor recalled his youth and the time he spent at Crystal Beach, not only because he swam at the pool but because the local Boys Club used the building as a meeting space. "I have fond memories of growing up and coming to Crystal Beach," he said.

In the past, the second-floor of the pool house has seen many uses including a roller skating rink, dance hall, Jaycee clubhouse and more.

Harold Lakeman, the city's first parks and recreation director, said the department's first office was in the pool house building. "There was no running water," said Lakeman, noting that he and secretary, Nancy Harper, had to leave the building to use the restroom.

Before serving as parks director, Lakeman had worked at Crystal Beach as a basket person. He recalled the facility originally had sand but the sand was removed because the Department of Health deemed it unsanitary so the sand was trucked to John Paul Park and placed in deep center field as fill.

Lakeman recalled Crystal Beach's history including that it was built in 1938 for $100,000. He said Lt. Gov. Henry Schricker was there at the dedication ceremony in which the Madison High School band and American Legion drum and bugle corp and color guard participated.

Courtney said plans call for the rehabilitation to be completed by the 2022 swimming season and added there will be grand re-opening event once the work is completed.

"Great things are happening all over our town," said Courtney, who added the projects are all part of bringing quality of life to the residents of the city. "Madison is a one-of-a-kind special place."

of "Kindness" that's so much a part of the murals, beginning with the 180-foot, two- and one-half story Kindness Mural.

Sharp had high praise for all involved in "making this magic happen." She said the vibrancy of all that's happening in Madison is "why you're one of the state's 12 cultural districts," a recognition that was given to Madison in 2015. "We are so proud of what you're doing here," she said.

The mural project is the largest public arts project ever done by the Madison Area Arts Alliance. The work moved forward through the support of many donors and volunteers, but also by a CreatINg Places grant from the Indiana Housing and Community Development Authority (IHCDA) through the Patronicity platform. "We're so proud to have supported this project," said Bridget Anderson, director at Patronicity.

"We are honored to have worked with all of you on a project like this" that's making such an outstanding contribution to the community, said Rylan Hamlett, placemaking and environmental review manager for the Indiana Housing and Community Development Authority.

Madison Mayor Bob Courtney also praised the Mulberry Murals, noting projects like the murals are part of what makes Madison so special.

For the residents of Madison, "we get to enjoy these (murals) every single day, and it's better and better," Courtney said, noting it's all part of the investments that are being made in the community. "Thank you for making this happen" Courtney added that the murals are part of the ongoing efforts in Madison to create a "quality of life that's next to none."

Courtney noted Indiana Gov. Eric Holcomb was in Madison recently, "We spent 2 1/2 hours at Main and Broadway talking about Madison. He kept going on and on about Madison, and what Madison has no other communities have in the state." Courtney noted how much Holcomb admired the Mulberry Murals during his tour of the city. "We're working everyday to make sure there's no better place to live than Madison," Courtney said.

Bill Barnes, president and chief executive officer of the Community Foundation of Madison and Jefferson County, said it took vision, drive, organization and leadership for the Mulberry Murals project to become a reality, and gave credit to Kim Nyberg, executive director of the Madison Area Arts Alliance. "This does not happen without Kim Nyberg," he said. "Congratulations to everyone involved. Thank you for this beautiful magical gift to the residents and to everyone who comes to Madison."

Nyberg called the murals project a "dream" that started with a thought that came to her while admiring artwork she purchased from local artist Jane Vonderheide. That heart became the centerpiece of the Kindness Mural that led to the murals project. "This is a dream meant to be, what can I say," Nyberg said. "If you have a dream, you've got to share it with people."

The project moved forward with Nyberg telling Lumpford, "I think you need a mural on the side of your building" followed by numerous artists and others getting involved — something that's possible in Madison, she said, because Madison is a community "where you can get a lot people behind you to make dreams come true."

In all, there are five murals. Artists working on the Kindness Mural were Steve Bickis, Kevin Carlson and Vonderheide.

The Local Color Mural features work from artists Jenny Applegate, Debi Black, Mary Heath Bischof, Cheryl Byers, Kevin Carlson, Patty Cooper Wells, Beejay Elles, Marshall Falconberry, Dallas Gambill, Gabby Hammersley, Bella Heath, Carolyn Lopez, Hannah Peddie Miller, Eric Phagan, Brenda Shropeshire, Aaron Spears, Barbara Tompary, Cindie Underwood Vanderbur, Vonderheide, Russell Vossler and Teresa Waller.

Cooper Wells did the Local Color-Eggleston Mural which features novelist Edward Eggleston on a tricycle in which assistance was provided by community members in creating the hundreds of painted dots.

The last section on the Hentz Bakery wall was the Living Tree, which features the selfie wall, all work done by Jacob Louden.

The final section of the Mulberry Murals is on the side the Jefferson County Amusements building, the River of Kindness Mural, all done by Cooper Wells that not only tells of Madison's river heritage, but also honors the art of Madison artist Lou Knoble as she incorporated his unique style of painting into a section of that mural.

Nyberg gave special recognition to Cooper Wells for not just her artistry on the murals, but coordinating the area artists for the collection of Orbs on the Local Color portion of the murals. "I am thankful for everything you have done," Nyberg said.

For Cooper Wells, the Mulberry Murals have been a wonderful experience and she loves the positive energy that the murals have brought to the parking lot.

"Strangers have become friends, and this space has been transformed. There are fewer broken beer bottles and more butterflies," she said. "Madison is truly a special place to live, not just for being beautiful, but it has talented people who write, paint, and write beautiful songs about it."

Looking at the finished murals, Cooper summed up her thoughts by quoting artist Vincent Van Gogh.

"What is done in love is done well."

"Remember coming out of that winter surge and where we were for a period of time, we want to be again," he added. "Because not only was it a good place to be, it was also a safe place to be."

The rate of Kentuckians testing positive for the coronavirus has dipped to 6.25%, continuing a steady decline in that key barometer. The state on Friday reported 1,012 virus patients hospitalized in Kentucky, including 289 in ICUs and 187 on ventilators.

Meanwhile, local COVID vaccination numbers continue to lag behind the national average and three out of four Courierarea counties are getting vaccinated slower than state averages with the exception being Jefferson County.

Jefferson County has 15,182 residents (54.3%) who are fully vaccinated, which is higher than the 50.3% average statewide for Indiana but lower than the 59% average nationwide.

Carroll County has 4,765 residents who are fully vaccinated (44.5%) while Trimble has 3,489 (40.4%) — both below the 54.8% average statewide in Kentucky where 2,433,385 residents are fully vaccinated.

Switzerland County has the lowest vaccination totals of the four local counties with 3,349 residents fully vaccinated for only 37.1%.

A total of 3,338,495 Hoosiers are now fully vaccinated while 190,578,704 in the US are fully vaccinated.

Madison head football coach Leroy Wilson III kneels with seniors Brady Mack and Cam King after the Cubs' loss to South Dearborn in the sectional quarterfinals Friday at home.

Madison's season ends vs. South Dearborn, 54-0

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Madison's once-promising football season ended with a thud with a 54-0 loss to South Dearborn in the opening round of the Class 4A Sectional Tournament Friday at Cub Field.

The Cubs' offense, which averaged more than 22 points per game through the first six games, was shutout for the second-straight game and stagnant for a third-straight week, managing only 40 yards total offense.

That anemic showing by a once-potent offense was more than enough to doom Madison against an opponent the Cubs had defeated on the road earlier in the season.

> "There's got to be a confidence in what we're doing and that's what we've got to figure out."
> — Leroy Wilson
> Madison coach

"As the offensive coordinator, first of all, it is on me," Madison head coach Leroy Wilson said. "When you look at the last three and a half weeks, it just has not been the offense that we saw the first four weeks. We've chatted about it, we've talked about trying to figure out where in the heck we went wrong, but somehow we lost. And we weren't able to get that back."

South Dearborn, which came into the game with a 6-3 record, was determined to show that the earlier 29-26 setback was a fluke and took control of the game from the start. The Knights scored three touchdowns in the first 12 minutes and led 21-0 after the first quarter and it only got worse for Madison.

South Dearborn added three more scores in the second period to turn the game into a routand lead 40-0 at halftime. Meanwhile, Madison put up little challenge and, as the game wore on, the Cubs slid further and further behind.

The only highlight of the night for Madison was a Curtis Jacobs interception that the senior returned 40 yards to the Knights' 8-yard line. But even that highlight faded after the Cubs went four downs and out without moving the ball.

"There were a lot of opportunities today. We crossed the 50 and then we were not able to do anything further," Wilson said. "We get the pick that gets us down inside the 10 and then we went backwards. It's just one of those things that there's got to be a confidence about you on the offensive side of the ball. There's got to be a confidence in what we're doing and that's what we've got to figure out."

Madison's offense was led, as it has been all season, by the receiving of Colin Yancey but the junior was limited to just six catches for 42 yards. Still, he was able to achieve the 1,000-yard mark for the first time in his career, finishing with 74 catches for 1,024 yards.

Junior quarterback Kaden Oliver completed only three other passes to other receivers and was 9-for-15 for 43 yards. The rushing game was held to negative yards (minus-3) for the third-straight week with Van Skinner's 13 yards on seven carries leading the way.

Meanwhile, South Dearborn collected 473 total yards and never let off the throttle, scoring two more touchdowns in a second half played with a running clock, the last of which was a 14-yard pass from quarterback Adam Kunkel to Reese Willoughby early in the fourth quarter.

Kunkel was 14-for-25 passing for 277 yards while Justin McGraw caught four passes for 102 yards and running back C.J. Rogers rushed for 164 yards on 20 carries.

South Dearborn (7-3) heads to Martinsville this Friday for a date with the 6-4 Artesians, who knocked off Silver Creek 33-13 in the opening round.

Madison ends the season with a 3-7 record for a second-straight year.

"It's the same thing we looked at last year when we lost a huge senior class and this year was about building off the guys that we had and that's what we did for the most part," Wilson said. "And so now it's back to the re-evaluation, look at who we got, where they're playing at and evaluate everything. That's what the whole offseason is about to get ready for next June."

Bengals rout Ravens for best start in 6 years

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Cincinnati safety Jessie Bates III had a message for reporters waiting outside the locker room after the Bengals' biggest win in years.

"If you're not believing now, you'd better start," Bates said after the Bengals (5-2) rolled over the Baltimore Ravens 41-17 on Sunday for their best start since 2015.

The term "statement game" may be overused, but it's hard to argue that the complete win over an AFC North team that has bullied them for years showed that these aren't the same old Bengals.

Quarterback Joe Burrow threw for a career-best 416 yards and three touchdowns, rookie Ja'Marr had a season-high 201 receiving yards and a touchdown, and the Cincinnati defense owned Ravens quarterback Lamar Jackson. Tight end C.J. Uzomah, injured for most of 2020, had two touchdown catches.

"This is their moment," coach Zac Taylor said after Cincinnati snapped a five-game losing streak against the

Trimble County struggles in 54-20 loss to Walton

BY LAUREN HANEY

Trimble County football struggled defensively while battling against the weather conditions and Walton-Verona in a 54-20 loss in the Raiders' last home game of the season on Friday.

"The biggest thing we're learning is that we've got to weather the storm. At some point in the game something is going to go bad. We had the miscues there early. That first quarter was the longest first quarter I've ever been a part of," Trimble coach JP Dale said. "We're going to do our best to take away our two or three best plays on defense and offense. It's really fundamental stuff."

Quarterback James Thomas Wilcoxson led the Raiders offensively with two rushing touchdowns and a total of 120 rushing yards on the night. Jessup Smith also had a touchdown and Coleman LaMothe had a two-point conversion.

"Some of the plays you're not going to see on a highlight reel but we did a good job with some of our basics. We stayed with our blocks a little better on offense," said Dale. "You know what you're going to get out of JT. JT doesn't get the credit that he deserves for being able to manage a game and keep everybody calm. JT never comes off the field. This is the first game he's not taken every snap on offense and defense."

The Raiders (1-8) finished District 5 play with an 0-4 record and will miss the Class A Playoffs. Trimble will play its final game of the season Friday at Jackson County. Walton-Verona, closed out the regular season at 7-3 and a perfect 5-0 in the district.

"We're going to try to have some momentum and lay the foundation for what's going to happen in the future," said Dale. "We would have liked to send them (seniors) out with a win tonight but next year that's really going to be our main focus. Our main focus will be us. If we ever get to where we clean up the silly stuff we're going to be pretty formidable. I am so proud to be their coach."

Carroll County football clinched the No. 2 seed in the upcoming KHSAA district playoffs with a convincing 48-16 win over Gallatin County Friday at home.

Zayn Satchwell and Spencer Vaught both rushed for more than 100 yards in the game with Satchwell tallying 117 yards and a touchdown on nine carries and Vaught 113 yards and three scores on 11 carries.

Carroll and Gallatin both entered the game with 3-1 records in district play — both on losses to district champ Walton-Verona, which clinched the No. 1 seed at 5-0 — and were battling it out for the right to host a game in the opening round.

Carroll had 341 total yards in the game, nearly all of which came on the ground. Zayn Satchwell and Spencer Vaught both rushed for more than 100 yards in the game with Satchwell tallying 117 yards and a touchdown on nine carries and Vaught 113 yards and three scores on 11 carries. Aiden Aldridge added 45 yards rushing on eight attempts.

Defensively, Jakob Ulery had a 36-yard fumble return for a touchdown and an interception. Johnny Scherder had 11 tackles and two sacks, Payton Williams had six tackles and two sacks, Satchwell had a fumble recovery and Vaught had an interception.

Carroll County finishes the regular season officially with a 6-4 record, but was 6-1 in games played on the field while being forced to forfeit three games due to COVID restrictions. The Panthers have this week off before hosting Gallatin County in the opening round of the Class 2A Playoffs in two weeks.

Providence had only 240 total yards in the game, with 137 coming on the ground and 103 in the air. Thomas Lynch rushed for 91 yards on 13 carries for the Pioneers while quarterback Carter Lannan was 8-of-13 passing for 103 yards. Cade Unruh had two catches for 44 yards.

Stephanie Hellmann

Switzerland County's football team kneels in the postgame huddle after falling to Providence in the sectional quarterfinals on Friday.

No stats for Switzerland County were available by deadline.

Switzerland County entered the season with one of its youngest rosters to date and was hit hard by injuries throughout the season to finish the campaign with a 2-7 record with wins over Oldenburg, 22-7, and South Decatur, 14-8. The Pacers graduate five seniors: Carl Abplanalp, Michael Galbreath, Dylan Land, Colton Skaggs and Daniel Whitham.

Wentz leads Indianapolis to rain-soaked win over 49ers

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — Colts coach Frank Reich wasn't about to make the same mistake twice.

After being burned by a conservative third-down run call late in a loss to Baltimore two weeks ago, Reich put the ball in Carson Wentz's hands this time — and it paid off.

Wentz threw a 28-yard TD pass to Michael Pittman Jr. to finish off the San Francisco 49ers on Sunday night in a rain-soaked 30-18 victory.

Instead of playing for a field goal the way he did late against the Ravens that contributed to an overtime loss, Reich stayed aggressive even in the treacherous conditions.

"I felt like something about learning the lesson from the Ravens game," he said. "We had a third-and-8 and I called a run. I told the guys, 'I'm not doing that again. I'm throwing a pass.' I don't care what anybody says. It really comes from trusting your quarterback and trusting your receivers."

Wentz and Pittman earned that trust, delivering numerous big plays during a driving rain storm that could have made throwing deep difficult.

Pittman had four catches for 105 yards and a touchdown. He also drew two other pass interference calls as Wentz repeatedly looked his direction as the Colts (3-4) overcame the wet conditions and an early nine-point deficit to win for the third time in four games following an 0-3 start to the season.

"It seems like he just goes into a kind of a beast mode kind of deal," running back Jonathan Taylor said of Pittman. "When the ball is in his hands, he's like, 'No one is stopping me.' And if the ball is in the air, he's like, 'This ball is mine, or it's a PI. This is my ball.' "

The 49ers (2-4) dropped their fourth straight game and remained winless at home for more than a year since beating the Rams on Oct. 18, 2020, as the return of starting quarterback Jimmy Garoppolo failed to provide any spark on a wet night.

Garoppolo threw for 181 yards, lost a fumble, threw two interceptions and struggled to push the ball downfield in his first game back after missing one game with a calf injury.

"The NFL is a crazy thing," Garoppolo said. "One week, you're on top. One week, you're at the bottom of it. Every team has its ups and downs. We're at the lower point right now. But we can fight back."

Wentz and the Colts were able to do just enough on offense thanks to three pass interference penalties for 97 yards and a productive game on the ground from Taylor, who ran for 107 yards and a score.

Wentz threw an 11-yard TD pass to Mo Alie-Cox in the first quarter and then led two short TD drives following fumbles by San Francisco, leading to his 1-yard score late in the first half and Taylor's 5-yard run that made it 20-12 late in the third.

Just winning one road game against a divisional opponent, that's what you have to do if you want to compete in this league. We have a long way to go, but I'm really proud of the collective team effort."

Burrow got good protection from his offensive line and was sacked just once. The second-year quarterback keeps affirming the team's decision to make him the top overall draft pick in 2020. He has at least two touchdown passes in all seven games this season and 17 in total puts him among the league leaders.

"Obviously, last year wasn't very fun," said Burrow, who suffered a season-ending knee injury in Week 11 as the team limped to a 4-11-1 finish in 2020. "(Sunday) was a lot of fun. Now it just really comes from preparation during the week and getting a lot of extra reps with the guys, and our guys on the outside making plays. There wasn't a ton for me to do today apart from trying to protect the ball. It was putting balls in positions where our guys could go make plays."

WHAT'S WORKING

Cincinnati's offense put up a season-high 520 total yards, with an average gain of 8.3. Burrow and Chase keep building on a chemistry that started when the two were teammates on LSU's 2019 national championship squad. Chase is the second player in NFL history with at least 50 yards receiving in his first seven career games. Running back Joe Mixon broke away for a 21-yard touchdown run, and Samaje Perine had a 46-yard rush for a score. The Bengals had just one turnover, a Burrow interception.

WHAT NEEDS HELP

Cincinnati continues to start slowly and not get the offense clicking until the second half. A pair of field goals and a touchdown put the Bengals up 13-10 at halftime as they converted on just 1 of 7 third downs before the break. The Ravens took a 17-13 lead early in the third quarter before the Bengals exploded. In the previous week's 34-11 rout of Detroit, Cincinnati's halftime lead was 10-0. The Bengals trailed Jacksonville 14-0 at the half before winning 24-21 in overtime in Week 4.

STOCK UP

The defense, which got a major makeover in the offseason, has been a force, particularly the line. D-linemen were in Jackson's face all day, sacking him five times and logging seven hits. The pass rush was a glaring weakness last season.

STOCK DOWN

Veteran WR Tyler Boyd has taken a back seat since Tee Higgins and then Chase came to town. On Sunday he was targeted seven times and had just four catches for 39 yards.
